Importance of Education

2.1 Reading 23 | 2 | 2026

Once there was a man named Saleem. He was a teacher by profession. There was no school in his village. With the help of his friends, he founded a school. He was first to set up a school in the village to educate children.

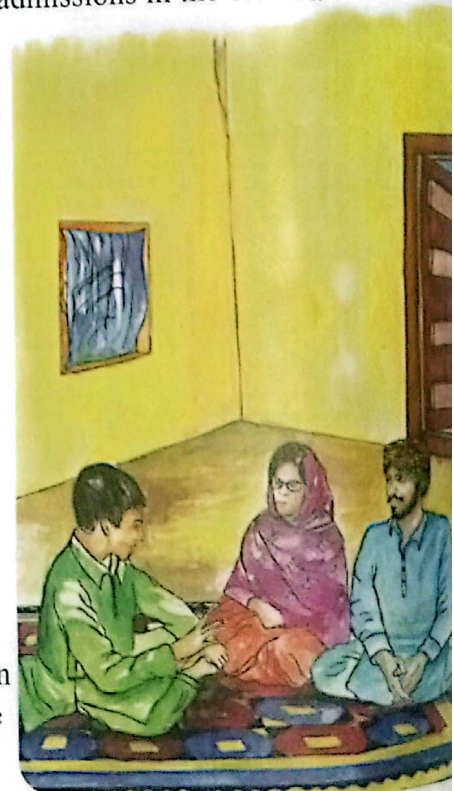

He faced many difficulties in the beginning. Nobody was ready to come to school. Parents thought that it was a waste of time. They thought that children should help them in farms and follow traditional occupations instead of going to school. Children also disliked going to school as there was no fun in school.

Saleem explained the importance of education to some parents and students of the village. He explained that the first word revealed to our Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) from Allah was "Iqra" which means "Read". Gaining knowledge is compulsory for every Muslim and Non-Muslim. He explained that education was important for two reasons. Education teaches us how to think and how to make good decisions. Secondly, through education we get information about the world. Saleem advised the parents that educated people could be a better help in farming, preserving environment and learn ways to increase profit.

After few days, the children started taking admissions in the school. Saleem levelled a playground and introduced several sports activities to attract children to school. As a result, more students joined the school as it was furnished with both curricular and co-curricular activities.

After the completion of school education, some students, including five girls went to city for higher education. Some of them became doctors and teachers. In the following years, they founded four schools and developed their village. Two health centers were also established for the welfare of villagers.

Therefore, it is important to get education to bring positive change in our own life and the life of others as well.

Activity -1

Answer the following questions in pairs.

- i.) What was the profession of Saleem?

A New Friend

3.1 Reading

It was my first day in school. All the children were very excited. They were eager to meet their friends during lunch. The school bell rang for the break. The children pushed towards canteen. When Sana reached the canteen, the children were pushing each other. There was no discipline. Suddenly, Bushra came and pushed her. She wanted to get to canteen before her.

Sana: Please, do not push me and wait for your turn.

Bushra: I cannot wait. I am very hungry.

Sana: Please be patient. It is not fair.

Bushra: I do not care.

Sana did not argue and gave her space. Bushra was very happy. As Sana's turn came the bell rang. It was time to go back to classroom. The canteen was closed. Sana was so thirsty. When Bushra saw this, she felt sorry for her behaviour. The next day the girls met again in the school. Bushra decided to talk to Sana. She wanted to say sorry.

Bushra: What is your name?

Sana: My name is Sana. and yours?

Bushra: My name is Bushra. I am sorry for my rude behaviour yesterday

Sana: It is okay. I forgive you. I know you were hungry.

Bushra: Thank you.

Sana: In which class do you study?

Bushra: I am in class five and you?

Sana: I am in class six. Would you like to be my friend?

Bushra: Of course! That would be great!

Sana: Let's get to know each other.

Bushra: Yes. Sure.

Sana: Are you new in this village?

Bushra: Yes, we have moved from Wadh a village near Khuzdar.

Sana: My cousins live in Khuzdar. I visited your village last year.

Bushra: Really! Did you like it?

Sana: Yes, it is a beautiful village.

Bushra: Tell me about your family. How many members are there in your family?

Sana: I have two sisters and one brother. My father works in a garage. What does your father do?

Bushra: He works in fields. My mother also helps him.

Sana: How nice! Do you have any friends?
Bushra: No, I do not have any friends?
Sana: Don't worry. Now, we are friends. We can meet in the evening and play together.
Bushra: That is a very good idea.
 During their talk, the bell rang and they both went back to their classes.

Bag of Coins

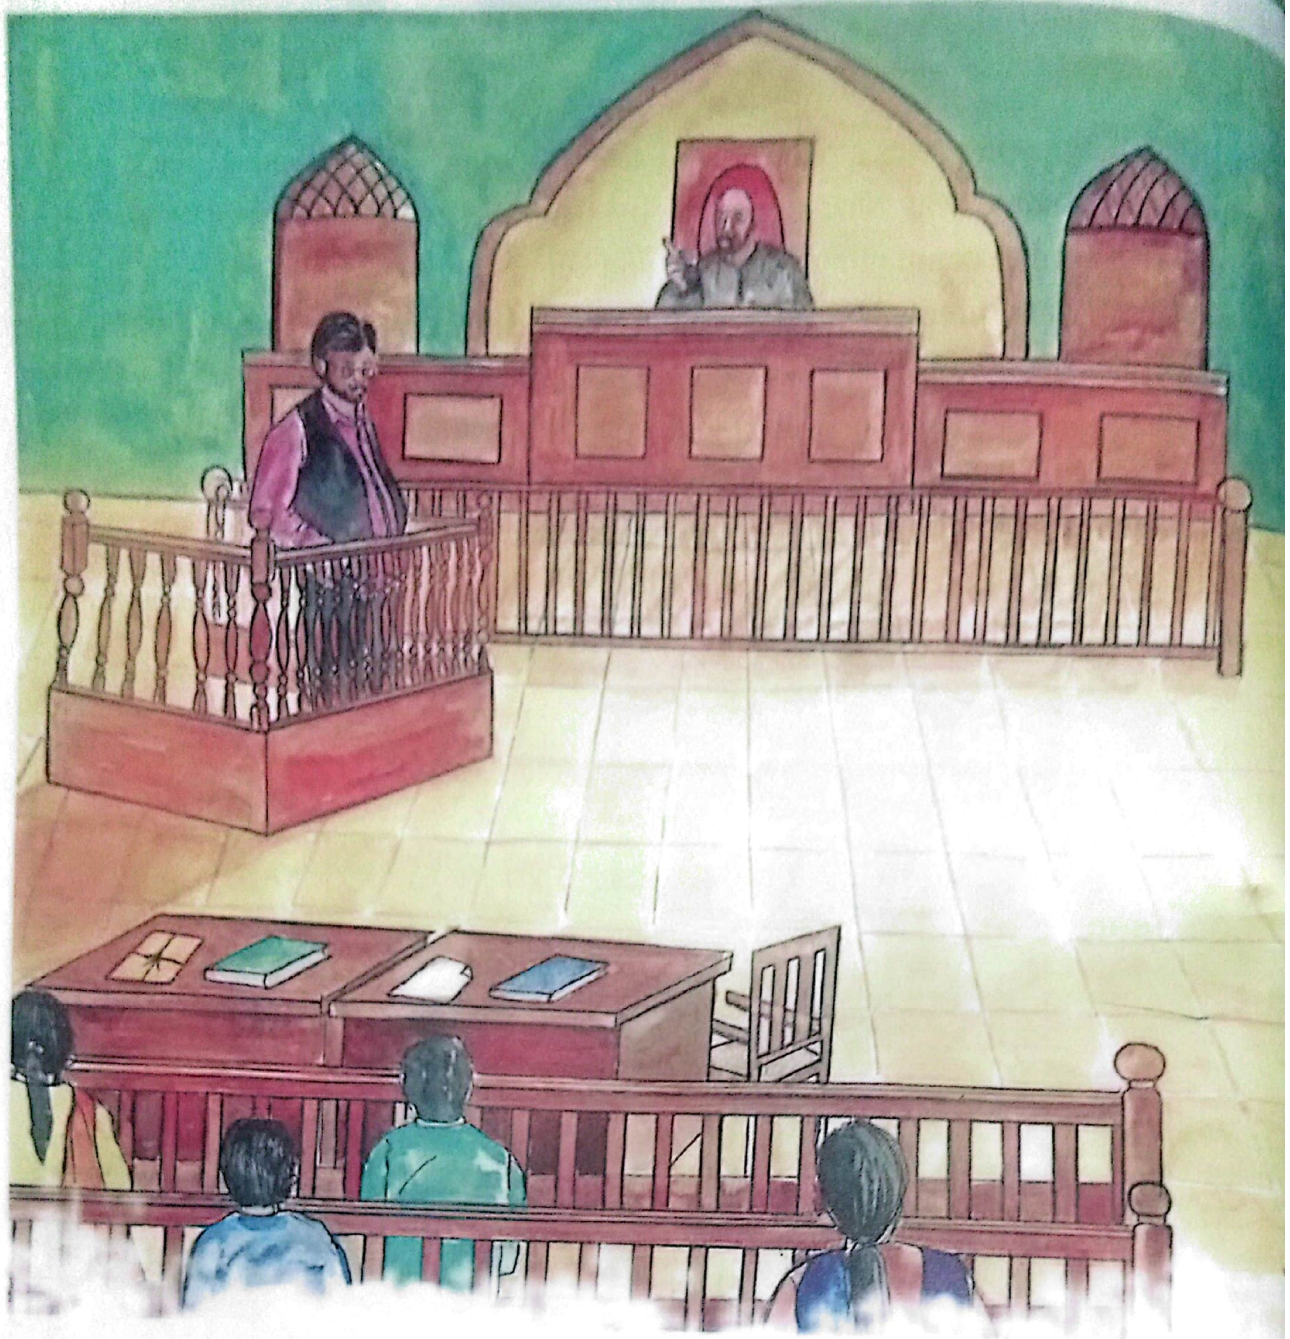

4.1 Reading

Once upon a time there was a rich man. He had a lot of property. However, he was very greedy. His name was Shamshad. He lived in a village. He wished to own everything. He used to count money at night and kept it under his pillow. He used to deceive others. Many times, he told lies to protect his wealth. He was a dishonest man. Hence, he deserved to learn a lesson because of his greediness.

One day, he lost a small bag of fifty gold coins. He searched it but could not find it. He asked his friends and neighbours about his lost bag. He requested them to inform him as they found it. A little girl named Najma, lived near Shamshad's house. She found that bag. She told her father about it. Her father used to work for Shamshad. He told his daughter that it was the bag of his master. He would return it to him.

Her father was poor, but was honest and gave that bag to his master. Shamshad was happy to get that bag. He didn't respect his worker. He played a trick against him. He shouted at his worker, "There were seventy five gold coins in the bag but you only gave me 50. Where are other coins? You have stolen them." Worker was shocked to hear that, and told his master that he gave whatever his daughter had found. But selfish and greedy Shamshad did not accept it. He decided to take the matter to the court.

Both parties went to the court. Judge heard both sides and inquired the little girl and her father about number of coins. They informed the judge they had found only fifty coins.

The judge also questioned Shamshad about the coins. Shamshad replied, "Yes lord, I had seventy five coins in my bag, but they gave me back only 50. They have stolen my twenty five coins."

The Judge then made the decision, "Since Shamshad lost a bag of seventy five gold coins and the fifty coins bag was found by the girl. So, it does not belong to Shamshad. It must be lost by someone else. In addition, if someone found any bag of seventy five coins, it would belong to Shamshad. There are no claims against loss of fifty coins. So I order the girl and her father to accept fifty coins as token of appreciation for their honesty."

Moral: Honesty is rewarded and greediness is punished.

Pottery Making

5.1 Reading

My aunt Sameena and uncle Junaid are potters. They are very famous because they make beautiful pots. One day, I went to play with their children Sana and Sheeraz. I saw uncle Junaid who was making some clay paste. Aunt Sameena was shaping a pot on a wheel. She was pushing the wheel. It went round and round. While the wheel was moving, she shaped the pots with both hands. It was fun to watch her smooth and lovely movements. After making each pot, she put it out in the sun to dry. Some pots were drying outside in the sun. My cousin, Sana was sitting under the tree. She was making patterns on pots. She said, "Hello Arif, I will come and play with you. I am making patterns on the bowls before they are completely dry."

My cousin Sheeraz said, "I also want to play with you, but first I must paint the vase." Uncle Junaid said, "Ok. I will show Arif the kiln meanwhile." The kiln was outside. It was almost eight feet high and twenty feet wide. Uncle Junaid said, "Don't go near the kiln because it is very hot." "Many pots are put inside to bake for three days. We will take them to market" I was standing near the kiln. We saw Alam was carrying clay on the donkey. Uncle Junaid said, "Tomorrow I will make some paste from the clay and then your aunt will make some pots, vases, and toys."
